Kingston upon Thames Bell Ringers Role Profile

Volunteer Role

All Saints Church occupies a unique position at the heart of Kingston and has witnessed much, from the coronation of Athelstan, the first King of England in 925, through the Reformation and slavery, right up to the role of the church in Kingston today.

There is a long tradition of bell ringing at All Saints Kingston and there is an active bell ringing team which rings bells after special services and for special occasions as requested. Ringing takes place in the Bell Tower– located up over 50 steps.

Learning to ring church bells is a structured and enjoyable process - if you have the energy to climb the tower stairs, and the coordination to catch a ball, you can learn to ring. However, it takes a number of sessions for you to be competent at ‘handling’ a bell.

Why become a Bell Ringer?

- Working as part of a team
- Developing your skills and experience
- Social – bell ringers are very sociable people enjoying barbeques and dinners together; as a ringer you will be welcomed in almost every tower in the country
- Music – creating the changes and permutations bell ringers call music
- History – history of bells and churches
- Travel – opportunity to visit lots of wonderful churches and little villages
- Engineering – maintaining the bell fittings
- Continuous learning – even ringers with over 50 years of experience can still learn new methods

What is involved?

- A reasonable level of fitness is needed to climb the 50 steps to the tower
- Physical exercise – ringing is a technique that involves physical exercise and a sense of timing, but doesn’t require brute strength
- Good time keeping and reliability are required
- Completing the training period and commitment to regular practice
- Working in compliance with Safeguarding Policy and Guidelines
- Individuals from the team may be occasionally asked to assist with minor maintenance issues
- Ringing is suitable for anyone from the age of around 12 and over

Bell Ringers should be:

- Interested in bellringing
- Good time keeping
- Reliability
- Team player
- Practical
- Engaged
- Basic physical ability

Time Commitment

Minimum commitment of 1-2 sessions per week: The Bell Ringing Group practice on Wednesday evenings from 7.45pm and on Sunday mornings and evenings. We also ring on special occasions such as weddings or special services such as Christmas and Easter.

Training

All necessary training will be given. It takes over 10 hours to learn the basic bell ringing skills and therefore being able to commit to the training period and regular practice sessions thereafter is desired.
